Graduates who enter the workforce will earn more than $250,000 over their lifetime than their peers who have only a high school degree. Meanwhile, because of the challenging curriculum here, SUNY Orange graduates who transfer to four-year colleges or universities typically outperform students who began their academic careers at those institutions.

Proximity ...

Campuses in Middletown and Newburgh, along with extension centers at Monroe-Woodbury, Warwick Valley and Port Jervis high schools, put SUNY Orange classes right where you need them: close to home.

criminal justice

If you are interested in a career in forensic psychology, cyber security, criminology, sociology, public administration or pre-law, SUNY Orange's criminal justice degree program could be the perfect entry point to one of those fascinating fields. It also offers a strong foundation for those who desire a career in law enforcement. At SUNY Orange, you will acquire the technological and critical thinking skills that are essential for success in any criminal justice profession. Graduates of the College's criminal justice program have prospered at many top-tier colleges and universities and have forged productive and rewarding careers.

early childhood development and care

Research has shown that development during a child's early years is vital to later social, intellectual and physical growth. If you wish to positively impact children during this critical time in their lives, you'll want to consider a degree in Early Childhood Development and Care. At SUNY Orange, you'll graduate with an Associate in Applied Science degree, having mastered the technical skills needed to work with children. You will be prepared to care for and educate young children, assess developmental difficulties children may encounter, and establish methods to foster a child's development.

human services

Recent population surges within the Hudson Valley have established a growing need for human services providers and practioners. SUNY Orange's Human Services degree program will prepare graduates for immediate entry into the workforce or for transfer to a four-year college or university. At SUNY Orange, you will combine classroom study in sociology and psychology with two "field experiences." If you enjoy interacting with diverse groupings, including recipients, families and professionals, you might consider emarking upon a human services career by enrolling at SUNY Orange.

police science

Thanks to the sterling reputation of the College's Criminal Justice—Police program, many local, regional, state and federal agencies turn to SUNY Orange graduates when seeking new employees. If a career in law enforcement, security, probation, parole, juvenile justice or investigation is in your future, you'll want to consider starting at SUNY Orange. You will develop the ability to secure crime scenes, properly gather evidence, solve complex problems, assess legal issues and apply ethical standards across a wide variety of situations. SUNY Orange's criminal justice professors all are experienced practitioners in the fields of law enforcement, courts and corrections, assuring your education feature a focus on the latest trends in criminal justice.

certificate programs

SUNY Orange offers three human services certificate programs for students who are seeking a quicker entry into the workforce or are eyeing career changes or professional development. The certificates are in Early Childhood Development and Care, Law Enforcement/Security and Teaching Assistant. For more information on how these certificate programs might help you reach your educational and professional goals, contact the College's Admissions Office.

about SUNY Orange

Orange County Community College has touched the lives of countless numbers of the county's 350,000 residents through its credit programs, non-credit programming and cultural events. As the needs of the community grow, the college will continue to play a significant role in the county's endeavor to face the challenges and to profit from the opportunities that await it.

Orange County Community College was founded in 1950 as the first county-sponsored community college in the State University of New York system.

The College has earned its reputation as a pioneer and innovator in meeting the needs of its students and the area it primarily serves. Orange County Community College was the first two-year college in the nation to offer the associate degree nursing program and studies in electron microscopy; and in 1982, the College was the first community college to plan and co-sponsor with local chambers of commerce a business institute.

Accredited by Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools, academic credits can be earned via full- or part-time study in the day, evening, or both. The College offers three degrees—the Associate in Arts, Associate in Science and Associate in Applied Science. The College also offers extensive technical programs in career fields (with transfer options) and one-year certificates.

Public and private four-year colleges actively seek our graduates for transfer into baccalaureate programs as third-year students. In cooperation with other educational agencies, the College also presents programs for academically gifted high school seniors, for business and professional people, and by special arrangement with nearby universities for graduate students.

More than 420,000 people have enrolled in a wide range of credit and non-credit classes at the Middletown campus, the Newburgh Extension Center and satellite locations across Orange County.

Consistent with its mission to meet the higher education needs of students, the College is noted for its commitment to ensuring student success. With the support of a caring faculty and staff, students have the ability to achieve their academic and career goals. Advising, counseling, and career guidance and exploration are available to all students as well as co-curricular and leadership opportunities that serve to complement the academic experience.

In addition to offering formal instruction to students in both the day and evening, the College engages in a variety of other activities. It sponsors a series of cultural events, lectures and artistic performances for students, staff and faculty, and to which the public is invited.

The Campus

From its original configuration of two buildings—a mansion and carriage house—in 1950, the SUNY Orange campus has grown to its present size of 37 acres that house 14 buildings. The College's beautiful and picturesque grounds are landscaped with trees and flowers indigenous to the region, while many paths and walks bisect the former estate. The mansion, called Morrison Hall in honor of its donors, now houses administrative and faculty offices. A magnificent example of turn-of-the-century craftsmanship, Morrison Hall contains beautiful wood carving, mosaic work, stenciling, ornate marble fireplaces, and a large stained glass window designed by Louis Tiffany. Horton Hall, the former carriage house, now provides instructional space for chemistry and geology.

Expansion over the years has infused the campus with significant additional educational space. Hudson Hall, Harriman Hall and the Bio-Medical Technology buildings contain classrooms, lecture halls, laboratories and faculty offices. The Sarah Wells building houses faculty offices and child care services. Orange Hall features a well-equipped theater as well as rehearsal rooms and performance space. The Library, with its capacity to accommodate 700 patrons, contains over 95,000 print and non-print resources, video-tapes, computer software and compact disc collections.

The newly renamed George F. Shepard Student Center, formerly The College Commons, houses a cafeteria and dining room, the College bookstore and nearly every student support function at the College. The Physical Education Building contains six handball courts, a swimming pool, the main gymnasium (capacity 3,000), human performance lab, three classrooms and an exercise room. Adjacent to the building are soccer and softball fields and tennis courts.

Adaptability ...

... is an essential principle in today's diverse human services climate and a fundamental approach to learning at SUNY Orange.

Experienced Faculty

SUNY Orange faculty, many of whom boast decades' worth of experience as practitioners and educators, bring current human services issues and initiatives to the classroom, assuring that students graduate having mastered the ethical, moral and social obligations required of their respective profession.

Internships

Real-world experience is available to students during the semester to maximize learning potential and put principals discussed in class "to work" right away.

Community Partnerships

SUNY Orange works within the community to assure the success of our students. Thanks to partnerships with a variety of local businesses, the College is able to provide "hands on" training through internships, field experiences, observational settings and other unique educational opportunities.

Distance Education

To give students the convenience and flexibility to study from home, work or anywhere, SUNY Orange offers a variety of online courses to supplement your on-campus educational experience. Because your time is valuable, and you may have additional demands outside of the classroom, SUNY Orange is committed to helping you continue your education by working around your hectic schedule.

Web-Enhanced Courses

The best of both worlds: classroom time augmented with online presentations and communications.

Accreditation

SUNY Orange is accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education.

Quality is a standard we take seriously

"I never imagined when I enrolled in the SUNY Orange Criminal Justice Program that it would lead me to a successful 30 year career in law enforcement."

Sgt. David Green (Retired), Class of 1973

City of Middletown Police Department
SUNY Orange adjunct professor/assistant professor

students get involved

Through a wide array of clubs, projects and internships, SUNY Orange graduates develop a strong base of shared experiences that prepare them for their future. Clubs provide an outlet for students to achieve excellence outside of the classroom. Under the umbrella of the Student Activities Office, student clubs at SUNY Orange feature academic-centered groupings as well as organizations formed through shared interests. The Criminal Justice Club boasts a rich heritage of involvement in College events as well as contributions to community and civic organizations. The club gathers regularly to investigate, analyze and discuss many of the current topics facing criminal justice agencies. Club members have been active in a variety of campus initiatives and events as well, including serving as officers and active members of the SUNY Orange Student Senate.

are you ready for a challenge?

SUNY Orange is renowned for providing one of the most rigorous academic challenges of any community college within the State University of New York system. But the College also offers a highly touted Honors Program for those students who crave a more demanding college experience. Honors courses at SUNY Orange offer enrichment through alternative texts, outside readings, research projects and abstract concept development beyond the traditional course curriculum. Additionally, students complete three Honors seminars, a service course and a capstone project. The Honors Program is open to both full- and part-time degree-seeking students. For more information, call the Admissions Office or Honors Program coordinator.
